

Allegheny National Forest Photo Trek Weekend Photography Workshop

Offering photographers of all levels a trip into the Pennsylvania Wilds: Allegheny National Forest lead by professional photographer Ed Bernik of Forest Press.

You'll return home with photographs of old-growth forest; pristine, native-brook trout streams; outrageous rock formations; historical architecture; and the unforgettable people who tell a unique story of travel in one of the last wild places in America.

Allegheny National Forest Photo Trek

*Three-Day Weekend Photography Workshop
Travel into the Allegheny National Forest, Pennsylvania, with Forest Press photographer Ed Bernik*

Explore the art of photography, capturing images of lush forests, unusual architecture and interesting people during this three-day workshop.

You will add to your creative toolbox. You will learn the art of seeing; how to choose a lens; and learn about exposure, composition and flash when shooting in color and black and white.

You are requested to bring a digital DSLR camera. If available, please bring wide-angle, telephoto and prime lenses; neutral-density or graduated neutral-density filter; flash and tripod; and a laptop to download and review your photos. Some equipment will be available on site.

For ages 18 and older. Fee includes two nights' accommodation and most meals.

- Dates: Friday May 18, Saturday 19, & Sunday 20, 2012
- Times: 7:30 AM Friday to 5 PM Sunday
- Location: University of Pittsburgh at Frame-Westerberg Commons, Room 218
- Fee: $625 per person with overnight
$425 per person without accommodations
- Registration: 814-362-5078 E-mail: Laurie at lbd4@pitt.edu

TRAIL CENTRAL

PO Box 371
Bradford, PA 16701

Workshop attendees will receive a free copy of Pennsylvania Wilds: Images from the Allegheny National Forest.

University of Pittsburgh
Bradford

beyond expectations